

LORI THOMAS | MIXED MEDIA

I've always loved making art, whether it's sidewalk chalk, floral arrangement, or calligraphy. Growing up I always wanted to be a professional artist, but life gave me a detour. I find that after a two decade long break from making fine art, I am more expressive, original, and untethered to ideals I once held sacred. I'm intrigued by how thoughts can elevate or infect our moods. Thoughts are reflected in the words we use in our mind, while speaking, and in the case of my artwork, through the printed words. I vacillate between thinking in images and thinking in words and my artwork reflects those two disparate parts of my own personality. I make art that feels good to me, which is often from an image that appears from seemingly random brush strokes and takes on a life of its own. Every piece feels like an adventure to me. I hope you enjoy my art as much as I enjoy making it!
